   I know Event 201 was eerily close to predicting this current catastrophe, but I think blaming Bill Gates is shooting the messenger. Remember, he's been spending most of his time and money on big public health ventures like eradication of malaria. This wasn't some random worker bee he set up for no reason, he was already involved with tackling big public health challenges...
   Now, onto the suggested chip or implant that can be used to identify people and show they don't have the virus. I haven't looked into that too much but that seems extremely opportunistic and not really an appropriate thing to be suggesting while a pandemic is currently unfolding.
